Bicentenary 2019-2024

Director, St James' Institute

St James', King Street, Sydney, is seeking a new Director for the St James' Institute because of the pending move of the present Director to a ministry position in Tasmania.

The Institute is the educational arm of St James', initiating events and public discussions around Christianity and contemporary issues, within the liberal broad church tradition.

The next Director will have an opportunity to expand the Institute's reach and to take it to a new level. They will need to have an understanding of theology and education, an ability to network and be creative, an enthusiasm to initiate ideas, and be effective at marketing and administration. Applicants may be lay or ordained.

Applications close on Friday 21 August 2020. A brochure outlining the position and an application form are on the St James' website www.sjks.org.au/life-and-learning/

St James' Anglican Church is a significant Sydney institution and its church building is the oldest in the city.
